

Rail.co RailStaff the rail engineer RailwayPeople.com The RailStaff Awards Rail Australia Rail USA Rail News India

Rail

Home Rail News by Category Featured Subscribe About Contact

Photo: (c) Transport for London (c)

London Overground stations to offer Wi-Fi

29 Mar 2012 □ by A. Samuel □ in Rail News, Stations, Technology □ 0 Comments

Millions of London Overground passengers will soon be able to access a free Wi-Fi service at every station on the network.

A contract has been signed with Wi-Fi provider, The Cloud, to allow 60 minutes of free internet access at every London Overground station at 'no cost to the fare or taxpayer'.

Rollout of the service at London Overground stations, managed by joint venture company London Overground Rail Operations Ltd (LOROL) which operates as part of Arriva UK Trains, will begin in the summer and be completed by the end of the year.

Transport for London (TfL) commissioned the contract as part of its commitment to delivering a 'connected approach to passengers'.

TfL's recently announced that Tube stations in Zones 1 & 2 will be Wi-Fi enabled 'before the 2012 Games in late July'.